

This painting depicts Van Gogh's bedroom at Place Lamartine in Arles

The door on the left served as the guest room

The door on the right was opening to the upper floor and the staircase

The room is not actually a square or rectangular shape, but a trapezoid

There are actually three authentic versions with the only differences being the pictures on the wall to the right